The mission of Integrated Performing Arts is to offer students an expanded experience in performance techniques, using the various disciplines in the School and in the College. The intent is to give students opportunities in theatrical practices and to use these opportunities to connect people and communities, while at the same time identifying and addressing social concerns.

Students minoring in Integrated Performing Arts will discover how the arts connect people are communities; identify personal social concerns and examine how those can be addressed in performance; create original work or reinterpret existing work through mentorship with professional artists and companies; learn the significance of the performing arts in the development of civilization; and gain an understanding of why humans are driven to create and express themselves through performance.
